

Heather brings organization, professionalism, and genuine warmth to the heart of Creekside Capital — ensuring our clients always receive a prompt, personal, and seamless experience at every touchpoint.

Heather DeCanio is an administrative process management specialist with experience in corporate finance and a range of administrative roles in diverse industries. While the many lessons learned in corporate were invaluable, Heather came to appreciate that small business is where she can provide a more palpable impact.

With a continuous improvement mindset and excellent organization skills, she's an ambitious problem-solver that enjoys helping businesses pursue opportunities to streamline processes, increase efficiency, and grow the company.

Prior to role here at Creekside, she worked her way up from data entry to managing small businesses and also dabbled in entrepreneurship in dog training and handcrafted jewelry. She's a native of Ohio that believes personal development is never complete. One of her favorite quotes is to "Be the change you want to see in the world".
