

With a genuine passion for people and an exceptional attention to detail, Patty ensures that every client of Creekside Capital receives the responsive, personal service they deserve at every touchpoint.

Patty has over 20 years' experience in client relations and account management encompassing a wide range of supporting roles in such organizations as a start-up IT company, local municipal, non-profit, and in tax, and environments.

She holds a computer science degree in computer programming where some time later realized that George Bernard Shaw's famous quote "Education is wasted on the young." is more a truism than she realized. Early roles in client development and sales support experience gave her the awareness that she is much more a people person speaking the English language than a computer programmer speaking machine language.

Having spent significant time growing up traveling and living abroad, she developed a diverse background in different cultures whereby developing her passion for people and the desire to build strong professional relationships became inspired.

Patty is mission minded at home and abroad. She has served her local community in undertakings from hands-on work projects for the home bound, visiting the elderly in nursing homes, to fund raising efforts for Hope Resource Center. Abroad she cared for orphans in Africa and assisted in tending to the medical needs of a remote community of people in Kenya. In 2013 and again in 2015, Patty and her husband served and supported the very poor and forgotten in Israel.

Patty and her husband enjoy traveling, antiquing, reading and collecting books for their home library